

Yes, I think it is. We're paying into it. It's a safety.

What I know is that it's the top ranked pension fund in the world, for public pensions, which is awesome.

There's so many people that are using that money for everyday needs. And if that's ever in risk, then we all kind of fall apart.

I think we're very, very lucky in Canada to have a pension plan like the CPP. And it being as successful and as secure as it is.

I think that CPP is only going to become more and more significant and important for younger people in their retirement years.

I'm quite happy with how the fund has performed and quite satisfied that our CPP money is doing quite well.